STRATEGIC PLAN
July 2015 to June 2020

Allegany County Library System
Ruth Enlow Library of Garrett County
Washington County Free Library

Western Maryland Regional Library

Hagerstown, Maryland
Dear Reader,

Welcome to the Western Maryland Regional Library’s (WMRL’s) Strategic Plan FY2016 – FY2020. Examining current practices and assumptions, and forecasting the needs of our region’s libraries for the next five years are not easy tasks to accomplish; however, they are at the core of successful strategic planning. The following pages are the result of that planning process.

With the cooperation and collaboration of many people throughout western Maryland and the state, we developed a plan that reflects who we are, what we do, and where we want to go for the next five years. We consider this plan a living document that can adapt to the ever changing needs of our member libraries:

- The Allegany County Library System
- The Ruth Enlow Library of Garrett County
- The Washington County Free Library

This strategic plan will be our guide for creating and delivering an exceptional level of service to our member libraries.

Thank you for taking the time to read our plan. We look forward to its implementation, and we will strive for its great success.

Kind regards,

Elizabeth M. Hulett
Associate Director
Western Maryland Regional Library
Executive Summary

Overview
In April 2015, the Associate Director of the Western Maryland Regional Library (WMRL) initiated a process to develop a five-year strategic plan. The WMRL system consists of the regional library and three county library systems of Allegany, Garrett, and Washington Counties. The WMRL Advisory Board provided executive oversight, and operational planning was guided by a planning team representing WMRL and the three county libraries.

The Current State
To develop an understanding of the current state of WMRL, data was collected by two methods during June 2015. The first collection method gathered data through focus groups and interviews. The second collection method was a web-based survey. During a two-day planning conference in August 2015, a group of 22 strategic planners (See Appendix) used the data from the two collection methods to identify the following key strategic challenges facing the WMRL system:

- Developing alternative revenue sources outside of state and local funding
- Balancing resource allocation to meet individual and collective library needs
- Fostering meaningful collaboration among WMRL and member libraries
- Communicating effectively among WMRL and member libraries
- Demonstrating the libraries’ value to patrons and funders
- Providing innovative programming support and resources
- Applying entrepreneurial solutions to improve library facilities

Future Direction
With a shared understanding of the current state, the strategic planners offered improvements to the mission, vision, and planning assumptions. They then engaged in a discussion of ideas regarding the direction WMRL should take over the next five years. These ideas were organized into the following strategic focus areas.

- Research & Development
- Region-Wide Communications
- Staff Development
- Collections & Support
About WMRL

Established May 13, 1967, at a joint meeting of the boards of trustees of the Allegany County Library, the Ruth Enlow Library of Garrett County and the Washington County Free Library, as the Western Maryland Area Library Service, the regional library was created to improve library service to all residents of Allegany, Garrett, and Washington Counties.

The Maryland Legislature formalized this role as a Regional Resource Center in Maryland Law, Education § 23-202 to § 23-205. The law defines regional libraries and their role in providing, through mutual cooperation and coordination, materials and services that individual libraries cannot adequately provide alone.

In 1998 the Maryland Legislature mandated funding for the regional libraries on a per capita basis. Operating as Western Maryland Public Libraries for many years, the name of the regional library formally changed in 2008 to the Western Maryland Regional Library.

In recent years, technological innovations have naturally evolved into services that can easily be centralized at the regional level. Western Maryland Regional Library services include web design, staff development, delivery, digitization of historic photos/documents, downloadable on-demand audio books/eBooks, online databases, and centralized computer management systems. In addition, WMRL continues to offer traditional services such as interlibrary loan, printing, deposit collections of books, audio books, DVDs, and the cataloging and processing of these materials.

The Western Maryland Regional Library is the birthplace of the internationally recognized public library symbol! First designed in 1978 for the libraries of western Maryland, this iconic symbol appeared in the 1982 American Library Association publication A Sign System for Libraries, co-authored by the regional library’s Mary S. Mallery and Ralph E. DeVore.
Mission
WMRL enhances its member libraries’ ability to serve their communities.

Vision
Empowering libraries to move mountains.

Tagline
We add POW to your WOW.

Planning Assumptions
- Customer expectations will influence library services.
- Funding from government sources will remain flat or decrease.
- Advances in technology will impact library services and collections.
- Some funders and customers are unaware of the library’s true value.

Under the expert direction of Harry Christiansen of Christiansen Consulting, LLC, several groups of people contributed to the creation of this plan. WMRL would like to thank the WMRL Advisory Board, the Strategic Planning Committee, Focus Group participants from all three county libraries’ staffs and boards of trustees, and the Strategic Planners who participated in the two-day conference. WMRL would also like to thank Irene Padilla, Assistant State Superintendent for Libraries, and Wesley Wilson, Chief of the State Library Resource Center, who consulted with us during this process.
